foundation stone of the state is the work. willingness of the individual to sacrifice his personal advantage to the good of the community. Opposed to this is selfishness manifesting itself in all its various forms of cowardice, violence, licentiousness, fraud, greed and all sorts of dishonest and dishonorable dealings. The external remedy of legislation may and does alleviate the symptoms but cannot touch the disease of selfishness. Since the human race was it has searched with diligence and sometimes with agony willingness of the individual to sacridiligence and sometimes with agony for the specific remedy which would.
